

Leading Education Innovation as Social Entrepreneurs

Eugene Kowch

President of Association for Educational Communications and Technology

ABSTRACT

Technology enhanced teaching and learning environments allow us to innovate and to change education systems more quickly. In the Information Age, more people are connected to each other in both formal and informal ways. The result is a continuous change in education systems while our education professions change too. How do we manage personal and institutional change to lift up our own practice, our institutional development and society in this new environment? In this talk, Dr. Kowch explores global trends in education change leadership, educational technology research and social entrepreneurship to light a path for leaders who want to maximize social benefit from our important work.
